SENATOR JOHNSON'S FAMILY.

Reminiscences of Their Life at the White House—Mrs. Patterson as a Hostess—Bad Health Will Keep Mrs. Johnson from Washington.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

The return of Andrew Johnson to public life brings the members of his immediate household again into public prominence. Of that household only kind words have been spoken, and now, as in the past, they are entitled to the respect the nation has ever given them. There never was a family so utterly indifferent to the public notice, so utterly oblivious of any claim they might have upon it. Hence, there have been few people more deserving of recognition or more opposed to receiving it. When the family took possession of the white house there was a class of people who imagined they had now found easy prey, and their self-confidence and vulgarity led them to call early upon the family they proposed to use for their own selfish purposes. The slimy lengths of the feet of these ill-bred carrion never crossed the threshold of the private entrance of the president's house. They were met at the door by a little woman whose stately air awed them, and whose gentle firmness rebuked their impertinent curiosity. "We are plain people from the mountains of east Tennessee," she said, "but we know our position and shall maintain it." Quietly that door turned on its hinges; all Washington was surprised and pleased, and the president's daughter was mistress of the situation. The daughter, the eldest and best beloved of the children of Andrew Johnson, was well fitted by nature and education to fill the high station she was then suddenly called upon to fill. She was educated where so many daughters of the south have been, at the nunnery in Georgetown, and while her father was in the senate years ago, she remained there, spending her weekly holidays with President Polk's family in the white house. There she met Mrs. Madison, the Blairs, Lees and other old families of Washington, many of whom in later years gladly welcomed her return to Washington. She was thus early introduced into Washington social life, and the people who imagined that Andrew Johnson's family were to prove a millstone about his neck, forget that Martha Patterson was his daughter. Forget as well that his wife was one of the remarkable women of her day, and not too great an invalid after twenty years of sickness to be an interested observer of all public events, and particularly of all events that concerned her husband's welfare. There were others of the family who possessed the same family sentiments; one other daughter, herself the mother of fair young children and two sons, one of whom has since died. Andrew Johnson returns to the senate a very poor man, for he was always a bitter foe of debt, and even his lifelong political foes admit his honesty. Returning to public life a retirement of six years, he brings with him the same characteristics that have ever distinguished him. Wealth he will never possess, for he has no exalted idea of its benefits, and he has lived in a section of country where wealth was the exception. East Tennesseans are for the most part people in moderate circumstances, and in their climate luxuries are not so essential as they are further north. Reared in primitive simplicity, and enduring poverty in all its forms in early life, he has not felt the lack of fortune which others commiserate. Self reliant and industrious himself, he has imparted these sterling qualities to his children and they are notably of independent and strong natures. Mrs. Johnson will never return to Washington to live. Her house in Greenville is the dearest of all earthly places to her, and, among her lifelong friends and neighbors her invalid years are more happily spent than they could be among strangers. She cannot go into society on account of her health, and Washington cares little for the wife of a public man unless she entertains handsomely. Had she health she would not give her life to social pleasures, for she is strong, thoughtful and earnest, and is not of the throng, even when with them. Her pride is amply gratified in her husband's advancement, and in the progress of her grandchildren with whom she finds never ending pleasure. Mrs. Patterson, the wife of ex-Judge and ex-Senator Patterson, will be the representative of her mother in Washington next season, and she, with her young daughter, just now at school in North Carolina, will do the honors of Tennessee's ex-president and present senator. Mrs. Brown, formerly Mrs. Stover, the second daughter, and there are but two—has her interests centered in Greenville, where her husband resides, and where her children are being educated. Mrs. Patterson has no young children to claim her care her only son, Andrew Johnson, being almost grown, and her daughter at present a young lady preparing to enter society. The only son of Mr. Johnson is engaged in business in Greenville, and remains, in the absence of his father his mother's protector. These are the members of the family of Andrew Johnson, of whom the world has heard so little since his retirement from public life. They have buried one of their number, Col. Robert Johnson, since they left Washington, but with this exception, they are an unchanged band. Mrs. Patterson is now a woman in the prime of life; resembling her father in all his mental characteristics and like him in will, power and energy. She has a daughter's pride in his public career, and a daughter's solicitude for his welfare. She has been to him a blessing from her very childhood, an obedient, faithful daughter. Next with her, in Washington she will add lustre to his name by the dignity she will discover, the good influence she will exert.

Something New in Gambling.

[Sacramento Bee.]

Our Chinese residents have introduced into the city something new in the art of gambling, and the game seems to be well patronized by the Celestials. The "beldinghouse" as a rope stretched from one awning post to another and bearing the prizes, generally a coat worth $10, a hat worth $2 and $3, and a pair of shoes worth $1, suspended from the balcony by a string is a piece of pork weighing two, three or four pounds, but no one knows the exact weight, and it is hung so high that it cannot be touched, but only looked at. Parties desirous of taking a chance in the game purchase a ticket, of which forty are issued, the price varying from one bit up, according to the value of the prizes, and each purchaser marks on his ticket his name and the figures indicating what he thinks the piece of meat will weigh. The ticket is rolled up, tied with a string and handed, together with the necessary money to the "boss" of the game, who, as soon as the tickets are all sold, takes the meat down and weighs it carefully. The tickets are then opened, and the patron that has marked the closest to the weight of the pork is awarded the first prize; the second best gets the second prize, and the third the third prize.

Two wedding dresses just made in Paris are thus described: "The first is the bride's dress; it is of white satin. The front of the skirt is plaited from the waist to the feet; at the back, a plain, long train, formed by a large quadruple plait; wreath or orange blossoms edges the hem of the train; the body is middle age in front, descending nearly to the knees, and is edged around with rich white fringe; at the bundle of orange blossoms and trailing foliage forming sash; tight sleeves; large square veil, to cover the figure entirely; lace frills round neck and wrists. The other collette was traveling dress of gray Sicilienne. Plain skirt, plain apron, and plain sash, each of same material and all without any trimming; body and over-jacket of the same, equally untrimmed; a cloth pelisse, edged with fur collaret and muff to match, gray Sicilienne cap, with band of fur round the forehead, and a gray feather to fall on the back. Gray boots. Gray gloves. Voila!"

THE CAT-O'-NINE TAILS.

Terrible Punishment Meted Out to Convicts—Flogging in the English Penal Colonies—A Muscular Executioner—Laying the Blows on with a Swish—Lashing a Boy.

[From the Auckland (N. Z.) Herald.]

I obtained an order from the governor of the jail to be present a few weeks ago while three prisoners, who were undergoing sentence, received punishment. The doctor was there too, but beyond a few casual remarks that passed nothing was said. I looked around, and at a glance saw the machinery—if it may be called so—which formed the sole furniture of the yard. On the right stood a small wooden kind of shop, which, with the opposite wall of the jail ward, formed a narrow recess. In this stood the triangles, round about which the ground was void of grass, and green with damp. The triangles are horribly suggestive things to look at, three leaning poles converging at the top, and firmly planted in the ground. Two of them face out into the yard, their bases being in the same straight line. Across these and between them lies a broad board, pierced with holes, through which a strap hung loosely down. Higher up on each pole was a similar strap, and another at the foot of each again. On the left stood the powerful fellow—who, I learned, was the public executioner—stripped to his shirt, which was rolled up on his arms, and displayed an extraordinary mass of sinew and strength. Beside him, on the ground, was a box in which were ranged the instruments of punishment—the "cat-o'-nine tails. There were several of different sizes—long, knotted, white-thonged things, with short handles like a stock whip, only covered with cloth to keep them from slipping in the hand.

THE FIRST VICTIM.

Turning to a warder the Governor gave some order, and the next moment a man was let in through the iron gate, which closed behind him. He was a middle-aged, hard-featured fellow, with a sullen face made more repulsive by being clean shaved. "This is his first time," the Governor whispered to me, adding the offence for which he was convicted and sentenced to be flogged. The man looked at the executioner for a moment, and at his order commenced to strip. Divesting himself of his hat, coat, and shirt he was led to the triangle and the straps passed round his wrists, ankles, and waist. It was impossible to move. He shuddered for a moment as the cold air swept along he yard. "Twenty-five," cried the warder standing by, and the executioner took up one of the heaviest "cats" from among those in the box. Standing about six feet behind the prisoner a little to the left he passed his fingers through the nine tails of the whip, which, with a rapid movement, he then brought across his chest, high up above his head, with a horrible "swish," and down with the whole force of his arm and weight upon the culprit's back. There was a shriek of agony, and in livid blue lines like cords the flesh stood out upon the poor wretch's shoulders. "One!" cried the warder, and again the cat swung high up in the air to descend a second time. The piteous moaning which followed the first blow gave place to another shriek, intense and long. The deep blue lines turned red, the blood oozed through a dozen different cuts, and the skin began to peel in strips along his back. "Two!" and again the terrible instrument came down. Shriek after shriek rent the air. The sight was sickening—horrible. As each blow was dealt the prisoner writhed in agony at the triangles, and when the lash fell for the last time and the straps were loosed that held him, he turned away faint, weak, scarcely recognizable as human, disgraced and marked for life.

AN OLD OFFENDER.

His place was soon occupied by another, whose appealing, terrified looks told only too plainly what he suffered. He would have resisted were it of any use. He had been there before, knew what it was, and would have almost given life to be reprieved. Stripped, and strapped to the triangles, unlike the prisoner before him, he turned his head over his shoulder and watched the executioner. There were the old marks of a former flogging on his back—black spots and lines—left there six months before. He tried to be brave, and bear it; but it was no good; the "swish" sounded once more, the horrible, knotted cords swept cuttingly across his back, and with a burst of agony he broke out in long-continued shrieks. One of his legs got twisted with cramp. He tried to stay the lash for a minute—anything for time—anything for one moment of peace. But there was none; the pitiless lash descended till the sentence was carried through. Then, when it was over, he went away, muttering thanks to God, as with bent form and tottering steps they led him to the cells. It was the last time he would enter that yard—and that was his sole relief.

A BOY IN AGONY.

There was one more victim—a mere lad, sixteen years of age. I had heard him convicted the day before in court for an offense he could scarcely know the nature of. He was a good looking little fellow, with a clear skin and bright blue eyes. He looked upon it all as a thrashing at schools, walked forward with a light jaunty step, and stripped as coolly as if he were going to plunge into the river. They strapped him up, and there came the order once again, "Twenty-five." The executioner took up a lighter cat, with thinner thongs than those he had used before. It whistled for a moment in the air, and then the fair, white skin of the boy was waled and livid and blue. There was a sudden jerk of the body, a quick drawing of the breath that made the chest expand and the ribs stand out more prominent. A second blow, and still no cry. He was game, and would see it out. At the third the pent up suffering burst out, and with a yell I shall never forget, the lad's head was thrown back and he wrenched at the wrist straps till they almost cut the flesh upon his arms. Once more—another blow—again—each followed by heartrending cries. Another—"For God's sake! Oh, Christ! God! Let me go!" There was a quick, choking, gasping sound. His head fell back, and all who slept save for a horrible sagging in the throat as each blow fell upon his streaming back. They loosed the straps and led him from the yard scarcely conscious. Thank God, it was over. "So that is how they flog," said I. "Yes; it isn't pleasant, is it?" and we left the place.

The New Hampshire Election To-Day.

[By Telegraph to the Constitution.]

NEW YORK, March 9.—A special dispatch to the Times, from Concord, New Hampshire, says the campaign ended last night with great meetings in the larger cities of the state, held by both parties. The two parties show by their canvasses that they respectively consider the state as sure, and it is impossible to predict the result. There can be no doubt that both parties are in better condition than ever before. The prohibitionists are scarcely heard of, and the feeling is that they will very generally vote with the republicans. There is little talk about the congressmen, the interest being centered in the gubernatorial contest. It is thought the first district will be carried easily by the republicans; the second will be saved by a small majority, and that the third will go to a democrat.

The excitement over the naturalization frauds is great. Two arrests were made yesterday.

"CIVIL RIGHTS" AT THE NORTH

Intentions of the New York Hotelkeepers and Restaurant Proprietors.

[From the New York Tribune.]

At several of the most prominent hotels in the city, where inquiries were made yesterday as to the action proposed to be taken in relation to the civil rights bill, the managers were found to be very reticent upon the subject and disposed to evade the question. At the Fifth Avenue Hotel, Mr. Griswold said that he did not think that the bill would trouble the New York hotel proprietors. To the question if he would permit colored men to have such rooms as they desired, he said he did not allow his present guests to dictate to him as to what portion of the house they would occupy; they were assigned such rooms as he saw fit to give them, and if they were not satisfied, they were at perfect liberty to go elsewhere. He declared that his course would be such as was for the best advantage of the house, and for the comfort of his patrons; but, if a colored man came, he would give him a room. In answer to the question if he would allow a colored person to sit at the general table, Mr. Griswold said that there was more than one dining-room to the hotel; that he would certainly not refuse to feed a colored guest, and would take him into such of the rooms as he saw fit.

At the Grand Central, H. L. Powers, the lessee, was called upon, and in reply to the question whether he would entertain colored guests, he said that he did not think he would be honored or troubled with them. When asked if he would allow them to sit at the general table, he said that the hotel was provided with three dining-rooms, and as he did not allow any one to dictate at his establishment, he could dispose of colored guests as he saw fit, and that if he saw fit to put any one in the smallest dining-room he should do so.

At other hotels the proprietors said that they were not prepared to commit themselves upon the subject; that they thought it a matter which would regulate itself, and when the time came for action they would be better able to say what they would do. At the St. Denis, in reply to the question, whether the hotel would admit colored guests, the clerk said that if it was the law he supposed that there would be nothing left for the management to do but to obey. The general impression given by the proprietors was that probably all their rooms would be occupied, or not in a condition to receive undesirable guests.

In conversation with the leading up town restaurant proprietors yesterday, with one exception there was found to be a bitter sentiment of opposition to the features of the civil rights bill relating to the entertainment of the negro in public houses and restaurants. One proprietor with many years' experience with colored waiters, had found them first to protest against serving their own people. He thought it a matter that would regulate itself; that the interests of his business and the sentiment of his patrons should be protected, and this even at the disregard of law. He preferred to pay penalties rather than suffer the destruction of his business. Another gentleman, employing French servants, stated that he should exercise the right, as he always had, of discriminating with regard to the quality and character of his patrons; that he could not entertain colored people, intoxicated or disreputable persons, nor those who were unduly dressed; that in all these matters he was obliged to exercise the greatest caution. The sentiments of other proprietors were found to be similar to these. Only one was found that expressed himself willing to abide by the law. However disagreeable it might be to him personally, he said that he knew of no other alternative, and in case his servants should refuse to wait upon colored persons he would serve them himself. One proprietor had in a few instances served them in a retired part of his saloon, or in a separate room, and would continue to do so as long as it did not injure his business. Generally no trouble was apprehended from the new law, as it was thought that the matter would regulate itself in the future as it had done in the past.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

CONSUMPTIVES, TAKE NOTICE.—Every moment of delay makes your cure more hopeless, and much depends on the judicious choice of a remedy. The amount of testimony in favor of Dr. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure for consumption, far exceeds all that can be brought to support the pretensions of any other medicine. See Dr. Schenck's Almanac, containing the certificates of many of the highest respectability, who have been restored to health, after being pronounced incurable by physicians acknowledged ability. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup alone has cured many, as these evidences will show; but the cure is often promoted by the employment of two other remedies which Dr. Schenck provides for the purpose. These additional remedies are Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills. By the timely use of these medicines, according to directions, Dr. Schenck certifies that most any case of Consumption may be cured.

Dr. Schenck is professionally at his principal office, Corner Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia, every Monday, where all letters for advice must be addressed.

THE young man at Stone Mountain, who was recently presented by his wife with two fine boys, in the exuberance of his feelings, came up to Stewart & Wood's, and ordered a fine, double carriage.

A LITTLE school boy in town said to his school marm the other day "Miss Belle, I know what civil rights is." "What is it, Johnnie," says the teacher. "Well," said the hopeful, "it means that you are not compelled to pay back what you borrow."

MASTER EDGAR is a three year old. He was telling his father the other day about a peddler visiting the house with pencils, needles, &c. The father replied "humbugs." Edgar responded "Yes, father, he had a basket full of humbugs."

DEKALB Superior Court begins next Monday. We learn that the Georgia railroad, with its accustomed liberality, will carry jurors and witnesses from Lithonia and Stone Mountain, for half fare during the session of court.

MR. H. W. J HAM is now sole editor and proprietor of the Macon Star, which, with the varying seasons, now becomes an evening Star. We wish Col. Ham success, and hope that his Star may ever be in the ascendant.

THE RURAL SOUTHERNER AND PLANTATION for March has a portrait of Gen. L. J. Gartrell, and a cut of two fine Sorghum Sorghum Lewis. Its stock full of interesting matter. Published by the Southern publishing company, at $1 per annum.

MR. CHAS. E. CONNER, representing Walker & Sons, of New York, the most extensive manufacturers of brass and brass wire in America, is now in our city. Wallace & Sons have been fortunate in their selection of so able a business man and gentleman.

S. L. HUTCHINS.—This colored man of Athens had a letter in yesterday's CONSTITUTION, which we headed "Mississippi or Hades." It is but just to say that the great errors in the letter were due to a failure to correct the proof, and not to him, for however "magnaniorecent" his language, he spells very correctly, indeed.

ACCIDENT TO CONGRESSMAN CANDLER.—We regret to learn that quite a serious accident occurred on Monday to Congressman Candler. While trying to get into the buggy his horse started off, and one of his legs was terribly wrenched. He is confined to his home by it. We trust soon to see him "on his pegs" again.

A PUBLIC meeting will be held at Edgewood church, next Thursday night, in the interest of the order of Good Templars. Rev. E. W. Warren and Captain John Billedge will deliver lectures on the occasion. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. Barry is a member of the firm of Moore, Marsh & Co., of Atlanta, and is known to many of our subscribers.

Isaiah, 9 chapter, 6 verse, reads: "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given." His voice is a harry-tone.

THE weather has been so inclement for several weeks past, the meetings of Beethoven society have not been very regular, at least the attendance at them has not been very large. On Wednesday night, there was quite a pleasant meeting. We learn that now, the weather having become more favorable, the meetings will be regular; and doubtless the attendance will be large.

There is no more pleasant way of spending an evening than at a meeting of musical people. The music spreads its influence over all. It is a beautiful art that only exists to soothe, to elevate and refine.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.—Messrs. Purchgott, Benedict & Co., are receiving their spring goods, and offer the following:

30 pieces bleached shirtings at 6, 8, 10 and 12½ cents per yard, each yard worth 2 to 4 cents more. (Call and examine.)

The State vs. Jack Pinson. Larceny from the house. Charge that on the 6th day of March, 1875, he entered the warehouse of J. J. Williams, and stole one small lot of lard, the property of J. J. Williams & Co., and of the value of $2. Plea guilty; sentence, fine of $15 and costs, or six months' imprisonment in the chain gang.

The State vs. Alex. Lewis. Misdemeanor. Charge of carrying concealed weapons on the 21st day of February, 1875. Plead not guilty; verdict was, We, the jury, find the prisoner guilty, and under the circumstances would recommend him to the mercy of the court." Sentence, fine of $15 and costs, or four months' imprisonment in the chain gang. Wright & Hill, for defence.

Upon the conclusion of the above business, court adjourned to meet again at nine A. M. to-day.

The United States District and Circuit Courts.

HON. JOHN ERSKINE, JUDGE PRESIDING.

The district and circuit courts met at their usual hour.

THE CIRCUIT COURT.

The United States vs. DeWitt Gormby. Same vs. Levi Chambers. Indictment for selling counterfeit treasury notes. These defendants belong to a gang of counterfeiters, who had been operating largely in North Carolina as well as in Georgia. True bills were found against them in both states. They were finally arrested in North Carolina, were tried and convicted in the circuit court of that state, and sentenced to the penitentiary for three years. Upon these facts being made known to the court here, on motion of the district attorney the above indictments were nol pros'd.

The United States vs. James Holley. Indictment for passing counterfeit treasury notes. This is the man who passed three counterfeit $50 notes a few months ago in Dalton, Ga. The facts have been fully published. The $150 were passed on Mr. F. M. Kent, who was about to leave for Texas, in payment for a wagon. The latter discovered the fraud after he arrived in Texas, and came near getting into trouble when he tried to pass the money. Full of wrath he returned to Georgia to prosecute Holley. The latter was arrested and, after a hearing was committed for trial by Commissioner Buck. Yesterday Holly pleaded guilty in open court. His honor gave the defendant some good advice, and then sentenced him as follows:

THE SENTENCE.

Whereupon it is considered, ordered and adjudged by the court that the said defendant, James Holley, be imprisoned and confined at hard labor for the term of three years in the penitentiary at Albany in the state of New York, and pay a fine of five hundred dollars and all costs of prosecution, and remain in said prision until said fine and costs are paid, or he is otherwise discharged by law. In open court this 9th day of March 1875.

JOHN ERSKINE, U. S. Judge.

This is the first prisoner Judge Erskine has sentenced to the penitentiary during the present term. Messrs. DeGraffenried and Culberson represented the prisoner.

THE DISTRICT COURT.

The United States vs. William W. Threlkild. Information for illicit distilling &c. Verdict not guilty. Darnell for defence.

Same vs. Julius H. Brooks. Information for illicit distilling &c. Trial, verdict not guilty. Darnell for defense.

SCIRE FACIAS DOCKET.

The United States vs. Samuel T. Anderson principal, D. D. Snyder and Henry G. Cole sureties. Judgment for $1,000 for the government, against D. D. Snyder and Henry G. Cole, surties. The courts were then adjourned until their usual hour to-day.

Resignation of Superintendent of Public Works.

Yesterday, Dr. E. A. Flewellen, Superintendant of Public Works tendered his resignation to the Governor, which was accepted.

Dr. Flewellen made a faithful and efficient officer. He saved the State several thousand dollars annually in his care of the public buildings. He served as receiver of the North and South railroad and Macon and Brunswick railroad, without extra compensation beyond the small salary as superintendent, while the Receiver of the Macon & Brunswick railroad, previous to his taking charge received $3,000 or $4,000.

The Governor appointed Dr. Flewellen, Receiver of those roads yesterday, issuing the following order:

Whereas, the positions of Receiver of the property of the Macon and Brunswick Railroad Company, and of the property of the North and South Railroad Company have become vacant by the resignation of the Superintendent of Public Works, and it being necessary that a Receiver or Receivers should be appointed at once to take charge of the property belonging to said railroad companies respectively,

It is, therefore, ordered, that Edward A. Flewellen be, and he is hereby, appointed Receiver of the property of the Macon and Brunswick Railroad, to hold, manage and control the same as directed by orders from this department. He will also for the present take charge of the property of the North and South Railroad Company as Receiver, to hold, manage and control the same in like manner. His compensation for services as said Receiver will be hereafter adjusted and fixed.

JAMES M. SMITH,
Governor.

NEGRO SEVERELY WOUNDED.

He Tries to Kill an Officer and is Shot.

Yesterday morning, about ten o'clock, a negro named Charley Allen was shot at Jennings town under the following circumstances: Several days ago a complaint was made to the police by Allen's wife for maltreating and beating her in an outrageous manner. This is not the first time he has abused his wife, and knowing his bad character, the officers determined to make a prompt effort at his arrest. The first attempt failed from the fact that Allen has a trap door in the floor of his house, and before the policeman could gain admittance he had disappeared and could not be found. A second attempt was made yesterday morning. About two o'clock, Sergeant Langley and officers Starnes and Menkin went together out to the house. Starnes guarded one side and Menkin the other, while Langley went into the house from the front. The negro, Allen, was on the alert, and as Langley entered the room he saw him in the very act of disappearing through the trap. Langley shouted "Look out, he is coming!" and at that instant the negro darted by Officer Menkin. He at once seized him and a tussle ensued, the negro resisting arrest with all his strength. As the darkey had on only a shirt and pants, and as the shirt was pretty old, the officer's hold gave way. As he tried to get another grasp, Allen with a knife, even had hitherto kept concealed in his hand. The blow was given with great force, cutting a gash several inches long in the left side of Menkin's overcoat, cutting his coat, through his vest, and through a knitted shirt. Here fortunately the knife penetrated no further, so that although it reached the skin, it did not cut it. Believing himself at the instant severely hurt, the officer let go his hold upon the negro, and drawing his pistol,

MADE A RAPID STAB AT HIS HEART,

FIRED ONE SHOT AT HIM

as he was running. Menkin after firing pursued him a short distance until summoned back by Sergeant Langley's whistle. Almost immediately after rejoining Langley and Starnes, the party heard some one groaning. Following the sound a little ways beyond where Menkin had turned back, they found the negro Allen lying upon the ground. It was discovered that Menkin's bullet had struck him in the back as he was running, and had passed through the left lung, inflicting perhaps a mortal wound. Allen was taken back into his house, and Dr. J. T. Johnson sent for, who extracted the ball. Near where he fell a very dull, white handled pocket knife was picked up. The condition of the negro when left by the police from yesterday was very precarious, and it is not yet known whether he will live or die. He at first denied attempting to cut the officer, but when he was told that the knife had been found, he owned up, and admitted that it belonged to him. Officer Menkin regrets the occurrence, but is satisfied that nothing but the unusual thickness of his overcoat, and the dullness of the knife saved him from a serious and perhaps a mortal wound.

THE CIVIL RIGHTERS.

Trying the Grand Jury in the Circuit Court.

The negroes who were put out of DeGives' storehouse on Monday night, as was expected, made application yesterday to the federal authorities for warrants against several parties. Some of them went before Commissioner Buck, but as he had not yet received a copy of the civil rights bill signed by the president, and as he did not know what crime to issue warrants for, he declined to issue any. It was then determined by the negroes to present their witnesses before the grand jury of the circuit court now in session, and try and make out some sort of a case—perhaps a kukiux case. Among these parties who have appealed to the grand jury, are Peter Hill and a colored woman named Clara Thomas. She alleges that she was kicked down the steps of the theater while coming out after the performance, struck on the head with a pistol, and ugly use otherwise treated. This we doubt, for no complaint was made at the time, or since, to the police. Charging a thing is not proving it, and we would like to hear Clara Thomas' witnesses. A number of them have been summoned before the grand jury, and that body may take some action.

CIVIL RIGHTS FOLLY.

Another Blast Against the Colored Bummers from a Colored Man.

ATLANTA, GA., March 8, 1875.

Editors Constitution:—In perusing carefully your paper on Saturday last, I discerned that you chronicled a rush of some of the colored people upon the barrooms, barber-shops, hotels, etc. Now, sirs, I desire that you and the entire city understand that those persons were lazy, ignorant individuals and vagabond "gentlemen" loafers, prowling around as wolves driven almost blind from excessive hunger to fall upon anything that may chance to lie in their path, and not representatives of the respectable colored people who have met the passage of the "civil rights bill" with coolness, with propriety and a just appreciation, and not with rashness and without moral consideration. And I do not want you or any one to judge the colored race by those few worthless and degenerate spendthrifts, for they are imbecile, devoid of morality, self-respect and dignity of character. They are wholly "non-competes mentis," and it is too reasonably absurd to judge a wise man from the actions of an idiot, and I desire that in the future you will scrutilize things more closely before you use another case of synecdoche in such a manner as you have done. Yours respectfully, JACKSON MCHENRY.

Street and Sidewalk Topics.

—A good many garden seeds sold by our city dealers yesterday.

—Our market continues almost bare of poultry, but few dressed or live fowls being brought in.

—It is hoped that the present cool weather will act beneficially in restraining the undue development of fruit.

—Business as yet continues to lack general life, and our market shows few really encouraging features.

—Among other vegetables at our stalls, yesterday, were carrots, radishes, lettuce, spring turnips and beets.

—Several colored men were solicited to go out on farms, by planters, yesterday. But they refused. Preferred to live on a dete in Pericles' Athens, than be king in Sybaris.

—Quite a young and skilful little miss was out on the public streets, yesterday afternoon, a horseback riding. Her figure was as graceful and "spiritualle" as Shakspeare's Ariel in "Tempest."

—A couple of very light colored, colored women had quite a fight out on Whitehall street, yesterday afternoon. The finger nail tragic on the cheek of one will injure her appearance for some days.

—Messrs. A. Spencer, Patrick Kearney, and W. M. Crim, were sworn in as special policemen, by Mayor Hammock, yesterday. They will be uniformed, and assigned to duty, to enforce the Whitehall street, and other ordinances.

—An excellent time for merchants to advertise. Some of the business men of our city are receiving spring goods, yet they do not tell it; draw upon the faith of the people. Suppose them to be believers not only in "things not seen," but even unheard of.

—Tobacco, owing to the short crop of 1874, has been steadily advancing for the past six months. The new tax bill adds four cents to tax, and our merchants tell us that very soon they must raise and advance prices on most of the grades. A few brands were marked up yesterday.

—Improvements are still going on in our city. On Whitehall street, Mr. Ryan is rebuilding, opposite Hagan's. On Broad street, Clayton & Webb are preparing to build. Alexander & Beaumont are having the foundation dug for two buildings, above the cotton warehouse. Mr. McAfee is building by Block's candy factory, and Mr. Ryan is putting up a business house opposite. Quite a number of dwellings are going up in various parts of the city.

—"I'll bet my money on the bob-tailed nag;
Somebody bet on the boy."

The races begin at Oglethorpe Park this afternoon. We learn that the track has been completed. Among the well known gentlemen that are here, are Messrs. Bacon, Barton, Hitchcock, Burton, and Gorton. We are informed that about five stables, some twenty-four horses, have arrived. Lovers of the turf may anticipate considerable enjoyment.

—"Behold, the young, the rosy spring
Gives to the breeze her scented wing;
Now the earth prolific swells
With leafy buds and flowery bells.
All along the branches creeping,
Through the velvet foliage peeping,
Little infant fruits we see,
Nursing into luxury."

So sung Anacreon, years ago. Well, yesterday made one think of the "sweet ethereal midlands, and people began to think of woodland flowers, and of sitting on mossy banks, by murmuring streams, and all that sort of thing.

GEO. SHARPE, JR., received a lot of boys' silver watches yesterday, and they went off like hot cakes.

GREENVILLE.—The barn of Judge Warner caught on fire last Saturday, and a large quantity of forage stored therein was destroyed.—Vindicator.

COLUMBUS.

The Redemptionists Fathers—The Rankin House—Rain, Rain.

COLUMBUS, March 8, 1875.

Dear Constitution: The subscriber reached this city on yesterday morning, during a drenching rain, which has been pouring down almost incessantly, with but little intermission for the last thirty-six hours.

Comfortably esconced, as we are by a bright fire at the Rankin house, which by the way is presided over by a very intelligent and much esteemed Irish gentleman, Mr. Ryan, and, who certainly knows how to run a hotel. The travelling public seldom meet with such excellent fare and other attentions, as he will receive at this house.

The Catholics of Columbus are being favored at present with a series of religious meetings. The Redemptorist fathers are here, preaching to a large and attentive concourse of people. This holy mission is attended by fathers Enright and his distinguished colleague, that fold veteran who labored so successfully in Atlanta, and whose departure were so deeply lamented by all classes and sects of society, are giving instruction both night and day to their deeply pious congregation.

The Catholic church of this diocese is certainly under many obligations to Bishop Gross for sending among them these Rev. prelates, whose ministrations both here and elsewhere have been attended with such wonderful success.

The Macon & Brunswick Railroad.

The governor, in approving the resolutions relative to the bonds of the Macon & Brunswick road, endorsed upon them the following reasons for approving them.

It is proper that I should explain my action in approving these resolutions. A careful examination of the evidence found in the records of the Macon and Brunswick railroad company, and in the reports of investigating committees of the legislature, has satisfied my mind that there was great irregularity in the issuing of the last $950,000 of the state's endorsement on the company's bonds, under the act approved December 3, 1866. These endorsements were made in palpable violation of the condition in the resolutions explanatory of said act, which provided that the endorsement of the State upon the bonds of the company should not exceed $1,000,000, until an amount of capital equal to the endorsement should be bona fide subscribed and paid into the company. It is very clear from the evidence that there was no bona fide subscription and payment of capital into the company after the state's endorsement was placed upon the first $1,000,000 of the company's bonds. Neither was there in my judgment even an indirect compliance with this very important condition. The company it seems, however, expended large sums in payment of interest, levying taxes, &c., and it is sought to swell the amount of capital invested in the road, by including such sums. The amount of money invested in the company consists only of such sums as were expended for the right of way, for the purchase of material, and in payment for the labor required to construct the road, and for equipment. The legislature that granted aid to the company would hardly have considered $40 000 of lawyer's fees, or several hundred thousand dollars of interest upon the company's debts such a "bona fide subscription and payment of capital into the company" as would warrant the endorsement of its bonds by the state. Inasmuch, however, as the validity of these endorsements has, after investigation, been affirmed by two General Assemblies, to which affirmance I do not find any constitutional objection, and thinking it probable that these bonds have passed into the hands of persons not properly chargeable with notice of any irregularity in the endorsements thereon, I consider it my duty to acquiesce in the action of the General Assembly.

With this explanation the resolutions are approved.

How a Lover Cut a Half-Married Rival Out.

The Salem (Oregon) Statesman tells the following interesting story of two bridegrooms' troubles:

A few days since a young man, hailing from the classic precincts of the La Creole, applied to the county clerk of Polk county for a license to marry a young lady, which the accommodating clerk issued. The same day another young man applied for a license to marry. The clerk was not in, and his deputy issued the license. The two licenses were issued for the same girl. The first party hastened to the home of his inamorata, and, fixed up in his gay attire, they hastened to a minister's residence to have the knot tied in regular orthodox style. While the ceremony was being performed party No. 2 came panting into the room, his face flushed and his almost broken heart thumping perceptibly. In answer to the questions if there were any who objected to the bans No. 2 yelled out he did, and at the same time presenting his license duly issued and signed by the county clerk. Here was a quandary the man of God couldn't get through his clerical brain, and he stopped, leaving the party unmarried. No. 1 came to the city the next day to consult an attorney. He was in a world of trouble—frustrated in his cherished desire of wedding his lady love the day before, he wanted to appeal to the law, perhaps to place an injunction on his rival No. 2. While No. 1 was taking legal advice, No. 2 took the much coveted Rose of Dallas to another dispenser of connubial bliss, and was married. When he returned he found that while he had gained his point as to law, his rival had gained his point in matrimony.

IN BEAUTIFUL DREAMS.

Come in beautiful dreams, love,
Oh, come to me oft,
When the white wings of sleep
On my bosom are soft.
Oh! come when the sea,
In the moon's gentle light
Beats soft on the air
Like the pulse of the night;
When the day and the flow'r
Are dead—dead to the sight,
When the dew's on the flower,
And the stars on the dew.

Come in beautiful dreams, love,
Oh! come and we'll stray
Where the whole year is covered
With blossoms as May—
Where each sound is sweet
As the sound of the dove
And the gales are as soft
As breathings of love;
Where the dreams kiss the waves,
And the waves kiss the beach,
And the sea is all peace
The sweet lessons they teach.

Come in beautiful dreams, love,
Oh! come and we'll fly,
Like two winged spirits
Of love through the sky
With hand clasped in hand
On our dry'd wings we'll go,
Where the starlight and moonlight
Are leading the glow;
And o'er all the clouds we'll linger
Of purple and gold,
Till the angels shall envy
The bliss they behold.

BREVITIES.

—"Borrasca" is the word which means exactly what "bonanza" don't mean.

—Ohio is said to have more idiots in her a ylums than any other state in the union.

—The excitement about the Newbury (Mass.,) silver mines is increasing. The value of one mine has run up to one million dollars.

—Adelina Patti has a passion for poodles. She has a flock of them, seven in number, all in an unnatural state of whiteness.

—Flora Temple is 30 years old, and her kind-hearted owner is doing all that he can to smooth her pathway to the glue factory.

—A bride in Indiana, after the conclusion of the marriage ceremony, stepped gracefully forward and requested the clergyman to give out the rhyme: "This is the way I long have sought."

—For evening wear, pears and precious stones are alone permissible."—Paris Letter. Pretty, very pretty; but isn't it a little cool for an uncertain climate?—Cincinnati Times.

—A Kansas family has lived four days on dried apples and snow. A down caster with such chances would have crawled out from under the drifts with eleven patents for making dried apple ice-cream.—Boston Globe.

—The Thames river at Norwich, Conn., is frozen solid to the bottom. A trotting horse fell dead on the ice there the other day, and the owner cut a grave eight feet deep in the ice without coming to water, and buried the horse in it.

—Phenia Epps, of Hamilton, Ohio, asked her mother to take a note for her to a friend of the family living in a near street. The note when opened was found to read, "This is a little ruse of mine to get mother out of the house. Before she can get back I will be on the cars with dear Lorenzo, and before night will be married."

—The San Francisco Bulleti says that the first piece of gold found which raised such a revolution on the Pacific coast is still to be seen. Its value is between four and five dollars. It resembles a piece of spruce gum just out of the mouth of a school girl with similar indentations. It could easily be identified by anyone who had ever seen it.

—Charlotte, (N. C.) Observer: In a sort of unmentionable suit, tried day before yesterday, Col. H. C. Jones took the rather novel position that he had the right to introduce a negro man as "documentary evidence" in his own defence, viz: Ask him no questions, but merely present him to the jury, and let them read what the Almighty had written in indelible ink upon his face." The judge sustained Col. Jones' position, and the negro was read to the jury.

—The sudden death of the Fourth Dutchess of Oneida is chronicled in the newspapers, though no particulars are given regarding the character of the malady which thus carried off an ornament o the society in which she moved. The Duchess left one son only three months old, a vigorant infant, promising well, though totally neglected by his father, the Fourteenth Duke of Thorndale, who is reported to be a confirmed old roue. The Duchess died in this country, where she had resided for several years. Her death will be generally regretted.—St. Louis Republican.

—The Rev. Dr. John Hall, in his lectures at Yale, on preaching, gives the following instructions as to how to prepare a sermon: Be sure you understand the subject which you undertake to present, so far as you bring it before the people. Be sure your theme is one that the public can understand. Be sure your theme is great enough for a sermon. Have an aim in each sermon, and do not enter on it because you must preach something. Consider the time, place and other conditions as affecting yourself and the people in the preparation of your sermons. Take a subject as far as possible with which you are in sympathy. The reader must not suppose that he may preach well by simply following these rules, however, because in another place Dr. Hall claims that a classical education is a necessary qualification.

Administrator's Sale.

GEORGIA, Thomas county.

AGREEABLE to an order from the Honorable Court of Ordinary of said county, will be sold before the Court House door in Greensboro, in the county of Green, on the first Tuesday in April next, the following property, to-wit: One-half interest in what is known as the

Oconee Cotton Mills,

in said county of Greene, belonging to the estate of Jacob Rokenbaugh, late of Thomas county, deceased, for the benefit of the heirs. The property herein offered for sale consists of about 300 acres of land, more or less, on the Oconee river, embracing a shoal in said river, and constituting one of the

Best Water Powers

localities in the State, with a

Factory Brick Building

of five stories, over one hundred feet long, and filled with machinery for manufactering cotton. There are about thirty buildings on the place for operatives. This is one of the most valuable opportunities ever offered in the State for profitable investment in a large water power manufactory.

Terms on day of sale.

M. C. SMITH,

VIRGINIA BUFFALO SPRINGS.

AMONG the most remarkable cures upon record, whether by medicine or mineral water, are some made by these waters in diseases of the KIDNEYS and BLADDER, in DYSPEPSIA, in DISEASES PECULIAR to WOMEN, more especially in Leucorrhea. They have accomplished the most gratifying results in GOUT and RHEUMATISM where dependent upon uric acid in the blood, in CHRONIC GONORRHEA, SECONDARY SYPHILIS, Gleet, and ALL KINDRED diseases, they are regarded by all medical men conversant with their effects as decidedly superior to any remedy in the range of medicine or among the mineral waters of the country.

They are put up for sale in cases containing one dozen Half Gallon Bottles, delivered at the Scottsburg Depot of the Richmond and Air-Line Railroad, at $6 per case. Address THOMAS F. GOODE,
